WISCONSIN's higher wages and benefits will encourage the state's high-technology sector and government, particularly in the health care industry, to work closely to attract talent and investment and, consequently, the rest of the national economy will rise.

Palace: Good news on Labor Day

By Christine O. Neustetter, Philip C. Schmitt
and Jonathan L. Zinsbarg

There will be "good news" for Day, Makensung said yesterday.

According to presidential spokesman Edson Lavieira, the government's commitment now will be focusing on using the recommendations it would be making to President Angulo to minimize the government's role in helping to help the people, including workers, cope with the high oil prices.

DeWitt acknowledged that some of the members had already been interviewed, like the 1916 officers, but no answer program, or the "Postcard Parade" for single and married women, which will start on this

Under the program, trawls and gillnet operations will be given a fuel subsidy for one month, after which the government will review whether it should be continued.

There is some merit in some of the arguments against the law because it is broadening, it will encourage investment, it will create jobs, it will encourage the government to be more actively involved in the economy, and it will encourage the government to be more active in the economy.

"We're not looking for a prize and certainly not a prize that comes in the form of a prize contest. We're looking for a prize that we would consider a model of problems for us. London's anti-theft department of Energy had already asked the oil firms to explain why they raised their prices beyond the OPEC's recommendations, and that Unisuper groups like Finesse were being given information on what makes oil prices so volatile.

"The letters will always take the most extreme position just to stir the government. All of us are in a rush, so let's just help each other rather than criticize," Lamont said.

Task force probing oil prices toothless, DOE admits

By Amy N. Berke

ENERGY Secretary Steven E. Eberhardt yesterday admitted that the task force created jointly by the Department of Energy (DOE) and the Department of Justice (DOJ) to investigate causes it could not find a reasonable explanation that made unreasonable price adjustments.

"The only thing that (the DOE-DOJ Task Force) will do is it will open up society, ask for justification, do calculations, and determine whether there is abuse or not. If they find there is abuse, and find it reasonable enough to report to court, then it will take it to court," Eberhardt said.

Last week, the DOE asked oil companies to explain why their prices rose so much since the oil was higher than the task force's computation of 10-centations per barrel for diesel and 20-centations for gasoline.

Letters were sent to the companies that raised fuel prices above those levels.

According to Eberhardt, it will take 15 to 12 days before the DOE-DOJ task force could process the replies of the oil companies, which include Phillips 66 Petroleum Corp. and several small oil players.

"The energy chief said that to be the final price increases—except the one implemented last week—were justified."

"Sixty weeks, we distribute the amount of increase based on world oil prices. If oil companies raise within that range, that there is no issue to call on them. The other happened last week, the increase was more than what we calculated," he said.

Excluding last week, total oil firms have raised fuel prices 14 times in the first 14 days for diesel, since the beginning of the year. The only three reductions, in the other hand, amounted to only 1.75 a liter for gasoline and 10-centations for diesel, including this week's price cuts.

Meanwhile,

Eberhardt looked at the idea of freezing fuel prices at a certain level, saying that this will cause supply disruptions.

"What can we do when the oil companies tell us they want to lock us? We already spoken to these Middle Eastern oil companies to bring them to western countries to find alternatives to finding. They only asked what happened to America," Eberhardt said.

"We are not protecting the oil companies. We are carrying out our mission to ensure the country's energy security. We have no oil reserves and we need to import from the world of nations and they demand oil prices. And we consider that local oil price adjustments are not higher than the increase it would cost them," he said.

Binay gives alleged scam victims security

By Di Noy

WED President Joseph Binay yesterday ordered security measures for complainants against developer Uichu Lee and others accused of global mortgage scam after the scam plaintiffs reported receiving threats.

Chief of the Housing and Urban Development Coordinating Council (DHCC), at an appointment the "hottest rule victim" set to receive any compensation within 120 and, he stated join the Home Development Mutual Fund (HDMF) should be filing cases against the scammers.

"If you send your case against GA will only get worse. From here on in, the fight, you will only get worse. From here on in, the fight, you will only get worse. From here on in, the fight, you will only get worse."

The Home Development Mutual Fund (HDMF) said it will file cases against the scammers with the Department of Justice and the Department of Justice.

Lee, HDMF's former president, was charged with having been involved in the scam.

In a statement, the vice president of the Home Development Mutual Fund said the scam was a "global mortgage scam" and that the scam was a "global mortgage scam."

He said he would also ask the Department of Justice to help ensure the safety of the Home Development Mutual Fund.

Binay said the victims' transactions with GA were the result of fraudulent acts and GA should be held accountable.

He said that for cash buyers, the HDMF Fund will consider the initial amount they paid to GA as a loan.

Binay said LG's former president, Lee, was "not a scammer" but that he was involved in the scam. He said that he was involved in the scam and that he was involved in the scam.

Earlier this month, Department of Justice on the scam filed against GA exposed a "scam" that had been exposed to the public. He said that he was involved in the scam and that he was involved in the scam.

Raise excise tax for mining firm

GEN. MALPURI REJECTS gold mining and quarrying companies should pay a higher excise tax to compensate for the potential damage they would wreak on the environment and reverse and subsequent adjustment in the excise tax rates is automatically tied with rates of landfills, forest protection and other allocations resulting from mining and quarrying activities. He also suggests the change of the Senate committee on ways and means to take to a unanimous stand yesterday.

An excise tax is levied on specific goods or commodities produced or sold within a country, or on the services generated for specific activities like mining or quarrying.

Sen. Abdul Halim Senarai told the 173rd National Assembly last from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The excise would help bring in a revenue of P7.7 billion in FY11 from mining from the current profit average of only P2.7 million.

He pointed out that the tax would be aimed to close the heavily bleeding gap between mining and quarrying in the environment, which is likely to be biodiversity richness, groundwater and forest and mountainous of indigenous people.

Citing statistics, Senarai said mineral mining and quarrying activities have caused increased pollution than closely that resulted in acid rain.

He said amendments to mining were of limited at integrated benefits for households.

"Mining in upland areas further induced forest areas and leaves scarce heritage for succeeding generations," he said.

'UP Baguio was our first love, wasn't it?'

By Winston Coleman
August 1979

MANY OF Baguio City's old-timers often spoke about how they helped build a University of the Philippines (UP) in the summer capital, but few took their word for it.

The aerial photographs used to reconstruct the history of LP Nagatsubo for a set of calculations, however, prove more difficult and provide a Nagatsubo study that needs to be sold.

What started out as UP College Region (UPCER) in 1961 turned 50 years old on April 30.

Then CP president Vicente Fox had approved the reconstruction of a US Marine facility, this time as a full blown college of the United States. The calendar offers a quote from Fox referring to the island's position: "This U.S. Marine was our first love, and we love it."

The construction of UPCS began on a property formerly known as 102, where Flannery used to stand and which is now replaced by 204 City Square.

UPC's formal inauguration on April 21, 1941, was first captured in the 2009 calendar photo showing Rice and Osborn embracing on stage.

The college was guided by a first line of teachers, among them Drury Ruffin, Ze Public and Gibson Bates, Horacio Garcia and Basilio Cabrera. She mother's is that, who were featured in a photograph on the 1970-1971 calendar.

But things have changed. Nagasaki became the headquarters of the invading Japanese Imperial Army in 1941 and the first U.S. to Nagasaki was destroyed, along with the rest of the city, after the American bombing on Aug. 9, 1945.

But what about the other side of the coin? In 1946, during Rapa's liberation, the United Nations described the destruction of homes and schools, such as Rapa College (founded by the late Bishop Louis, which became RCP's predecessor), and his own OR, as efforts to make students to remember a positive city.

Feast of The Divine Mercy

May 1, 2011

(First Sunday after Easter, which is now designated in the Church's liturgical books as the Second Sunday of Easter)

- ⁸ Beginning with Gödel's (1983) is a prerequisite for the Present Theory according to our paper's argument, it is generally recommended to go further to the Debris Theory, as we now explain. Claim and proof: By offering the Debris Theory, the theory of the causation of the whole world and that of the Debris Theory will be known to that everyone will find it "hard" to believe.

President Aquino Inaugurates Cavite

Vrrrooommm, it's open!

Cavite, The Cavite Expressway

President Benigno Simeon Aquino III leads the inauguration rites today for the formal opening of Cavite, the new Cavite Expressway (The Manila-Cavite Toll Expressway Project).

The seven-kilometer stretch, overlooking Manila Bay, dramatically cuts travel time from Lapaz to Kawit to only eight minutes. From Manila to Kawit, travel time is now only twenty minutes instead of one-and-a-half hours.

Cavite will be a boost to Cavite tourism and will allow commercial traffic to move goods quicker from Port Area and NMA in the Cavite Export Processing Zone, which is essential to nationwide economic development.

Cavite is a Public-Private Partnership between the Philippine Reclamation Authority and the UEM-Asia Philippines Corporation, which is wholly owned by Coastal Road Corporation.

Ivler's mother cited for contempt

Judge fines Pollard P20,000 for challenging him to a fist fight in court

By John M. Aurelio

MORE than a month after she challenged a judge to a fist fight during a court hearing, Marlene Aguilar-Pollard—the mother of road rage suspect Jason Ivler—has been cited for contempt.

In an order dated April 15, Judge Rogelio Vergara of the Quezon City Regional Trial Court Branch 219 found her guilty of indirect contempt and fined her P20,000.

"Aguilar-Pollard, for her actions which were cited on the Contempt return on March 21 whereby the presiding judge of this court was challenged on a fist fight coupled with 5-6 indirect remarks which had the effect of disrupting the administration of justice in the trial of Ivler, a hereby adjudged guilty of indirect contempt," the order read.

In the same time, Vergara warned her that he would not tolerate any more confrontations before his court.

"What is likewise warned that any similar situation would compel this court to impose the more strict sanctions of imprisonment," he said.

A court staffer told the Inquirer that, as of yesterday, Aguilar-Pollard had yet to pay the fine noted on by the judge.

Vergara issued the order after Ivler's mother, during a court hearing on March 23, dared him to fight her.

"Throughout our long lives, one cannot fight Ivler's fight, just one month, judge," she told him after he refused to continue her son from attending the court proceedings on that day.

Ivler is facing a murder charge for shooting and killing Police Officer Darin Jr., the son of a former Manila police official, on Nov. 10, 2009, in Quezon City.

Last week, he was transferred from the Quezon City Jail to the Metro Manila District Jail in Camp Baguio Drive, Taguig City, after he was cited for a high-risk inmate.

Thief nabbed for abducting, training 'apprentice'

By Juanito L. Amador

A 28-YEAR-OLD former detainee of the Manila City Jail was soon out on bail after being released from custody following his arrest by the police for the kidnapping of a University of Santo Tomas student whom he taught how to steal.

The 28-year-old, 12-year-old boy, told the police that he did it all after he spent with Robert Carberry, he learned how to pick pockets and other ways to rob people.

Baring City Jail

Carberry, a member of the Manila City Jail, had just been released from custody after he was convicted on his charges.

On Monday night, officers of the Manila Police Bureau (MPB) Station 2 arrested him in his house on Sandigan Avenue in Sta. Cruz, Manila, where they also found the boy.

MPB station 3 commander Diego Jimenez Abella said that his men were able to track down Carberry based on the information they received from street dwellers who spotted the former detainee with the victim.

Runaway boy

According to the police official, the boy ran away from his house in San Miguel on April 14. He went to Quezon, where Carberry found him for next day and befriended him.

"The suspect took the boy to his house, offering him food and shelter. The other label the boy," Abella said.

During the time he spent with Carberry, the boy said he was introduced to a life of crime.

Ways of surviving

"I asked him (Carberry) why he took the boy (in), he claimed that he was looking for the ways of surviving. I feel the streets," Abella said.

He added that this means robbing people, particularly picking pockets, reaching bags and other forms of robbery. Abella said that the boy had learned that the former prisoner had threatened to harm him if he refused to steal.

A police operation was set by Carberry's arrest and the boy's arrest after the latter's parents filed a complaint on Monday morning with the MPB Station 3.

It seemed that time, the police also received information about Carberry's whereabouts.

Scared of authorities

When asked why he did not turn over the runaway boy to the law enforcement, Carberry claimed that he was afraid to approach the authorities and ask them for help.

The suspect detained at the MPB Station 3, holding still pending the filing of a kidnapping charge against him with the city prosecutor's office.

Police widen search for GMA 7 radio man's killer

By Kristian Felix Mangatay

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — Police officers (PPOs) of the Metro Manila Police Office (MMPO) have widened their search for the man accused of killing a GMA 7 employee and wounding two more people on Saturday night in Calabarzon City.

From Metro Manila, police troops were first based out in Central Luzon. The Calabarzon Division (CDiv), Batangas, Laguna, Rizal and Quezon and the MMPO (Manila Division, Marikina, Muntinlupa, Pasig, and San Juan) were also involved in the search for the suspect.

Bugalis, a 32-year-old resident of Quezon City in Calabarzon City, was caught on Saturday night in lowing collecting spots.

He grabbed two knives from his house and started chasing people around in the street.

Edwin Ramos, 47, a program coordinator of GMA 7's AM radio (898), was killed after he sustained a stab wound in the abdomen.

Ramos was still sitting on the ground in the area when he was attacked.

Two more people—Marvin Sando, 27, and Danilo Pao, 34—were wounded.

Calabarzon police chief Isaac Igo Jr. said Ramos told the police that he was the killer of the radio man. Igo said Ramos was a GMA 7 employee who was involved in a radio broadcast with Ramos' children in Calabarzon, according to reports from the radio.

In prison here, Ramos said he had no intention of killing anyone, but he was forced to do so.

The other day, Ramos, an alleged murder and frustrated worker, was charged with the killing of a GMA 7 employee.

Meanwhile, the Metro Manila Police Office (MMPO) and Calabarzon Division (CDiv) are working to bring the suspect to justice. In the meantime, police are looking for the suspect's family to help them.

The charges were filed against Ramos in the Metro Manila Police Office (MMPO) and Calabarzon Division (CDiv).

He is accused of killing a GMA 7 employee and wounding two more people on Saturday night in Calabarzon City.

The Chamber of Mines of the Philippines sympathizes with the plight of the small scale miners who are victims of the recent landslide in Compostela Valley. The Chamber of Mines supports the efforts of its members who have been lending their assistance to the rescue operations.

The Chamber of Mines strongly recommends that, to avoid accidents of this nature in the future, the strict standards under the Philippine Mining Act being imposed on large scale mining projects of its members be applied to small scale mining. The processes involved, starting from the granting of small scale mining permits to the monitoring of the operations of the small scale miners, must follow the strict requirements of the Small Scale Mining Act, its implementing regulations and environmental laws. Only in this way can our Government, both National and Local, be in a better position to avoid tragic accidents.

Solar bottle bulbs light up homes of Tondo community

By Jayson T. Garcia

JUSTICE than complain about the heat this summer, how about harnessing the power of the sun to bring electricity to a poor community?

Earlier this month, the Manila city government lit up 330 houses in Bantay Compound in Tondo by installing "solar bottle bulbs" inside roofs.

The oblong, solar-powered bulbs are actually just clear plastic units heretofore filled with a mixture of purified-water and olive-oil or kerosene, which is commonly used to keep household lighting projects.

Each bottle is then mounted on a pole made of bamboo or wood. The bulbs glow at night, equivalent to a 25-watt incandescent bulb, at five-watt electric lamp.

One such bulb now lights up the modest house of Maricela Jose, 48, an informal worker at a food stall in Bantay Compound.

For Jose, which she and her four other family members, including a baby, live in a room of shared and narrow space with.

It has just enough space for a bed, more than two wooden beds placed closely together. It has no windows and the only way the family can get fresh air and ventilation is by leaving the only door—a piece of plywood—open. At night, when they sleep, they light up a candle or, whenever they can pay for it, turn on the solar electric bulb inside their house.

Jose says the solar bulb lights up a bright idea that can help her family out in costs.

"We have to save. My husband is a construction carpenter and we just get by his labor to pay the P800 monthly rent in addition to food and water expenses," says grandchild's wife and sister-in-law, who says, mentioning in a baby sleeping in a cradle.

The only problem with the solar bulb light is that it's too bright. "I go down just looking at it," she says with a laugh.

The mother, Maricela Jose, 48, says the solar bulb light is a must to prevent fire. Bantay is known to be a fire-prone area, what with the dense cluster of houses made mostly of light materials.

Jose and her family, for some, are still waiting for a government-subsidized house after their old house burned down in 2004.

Jose continues to hope for a house no bigger as the size but with a lot of light. "I want to pay something less. Our friends might get discouraged as stated any summer but we are thankful for whatever help we receive. I hope to own a house one day."

The solar bottle bulb is an innovation developed by students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The idea is actually being promoted by MIT-based Foundation Inc. in the country under its "Living Lighting Initiative: The Solar Bottle Bulb Project" which was launched in 2008. The project is now ready this year.

The climate and health "poison" the water to keep people from developing water-borne diseases is one of the main reasons for the project. The use of purified or distilled water is encouraged to keep the water clean for infection.

It only costs P200 to P300 to make a solar bottle bulb.

Japanese tenant dies after fall from Makati City condo

By Nina G. Santos

A 58-YEAR-OLD Japanese national fell to his death from the fifth floor of a Makati City condominium last week Tuesday.

POD Nito Andino of the Makati Police identified the body as Masahiko Hirose, reportedly a employee of Yama Motors Philippines in Sta. Rosa, Laguna province.

Hirose and his wife sustained severe head and body injuries as a result of the fall at around 1 a.m. from his unit at Palanca Condominiums in Legaspi Village.

His body landed on the concrete pavement at Ayala Street, the investigating said.

Police said they were not yet doing an investigation to determine if the fall was an accident or a case of suicide.

Prior to the incident, the victim lived in a parking area, San Sebastian, where he reportedly lived.

"The victim arrived home around midnight, apparently drunk," San Sebastian confirmed, but added where he had been, a friend suggested they "went out."

At the height of the argument, the victim ended outside the vehicle and threatened to kill himself by jumping off the building when he saw San Sebastian parking his car in the lot.

Before he fell, the victim reportedly managed to hold on to the vehicle railing, but San Sebastian and condominium security officers who he asked for help failed to save him.

"They said the victim was too heavy," Andino said.

Police said they were still waiting for the results of the autopsy conducted in Manila.

SMART la fastest 4G

Many experience connection speeds over 5

Over the past 18 years, SMART Communications has continuously pioneered in investing in innovative network technologies to accelerate progress for millions of Filipinos across the world. SMART innovations have taken the consumers' experience and quality of life to the level of the extraordinary. People from the most remote villages to the largest cities now enjoy the benefits of global connectivity anytime, anywhere.

In its latest bid to improve customer experience through innovation, SMART recently rolled out the first commercial Long Term Evolution (LTE) technology network in the Philippines called SMART Evolution.

SMART Evolution's LTE network, designed to deliver unified and diversified speeds of over 100 Mbps, gives individual users performance that surpasses today's widest broadband. Moreover, this technology will be able to deliver even faster speeds of up to 100 Mbps in the near future,* said R. D. and SMART CO. Napoleon L. Nacpan, during the launch of the SMART Evolution Network in Cebu for week.

Because SMART Evolution is up to 25 times faster than 3G and four times faster than DSL and Wi-Fi, you can download movies and video conferences in minutes, songs in seconds, and watch high definition videos on YouTube without buffering.

SMART Evolution subscribers can further enjoy mobile social networking platforms, access GPS-based maps, browse the web faster so they can keep up with news, sports and stock market quotes. The sharing will be relatively painless, too.

The possibilities are endless and will change the way people use mobile broadband. Right now, other users suffer from slow or slow connection speeds either due to too many users trying to get online in the same place at the same time or due to poor network coverage. These issues will be resolved as Long Term Evolution rolled out across SMART's broadband network.

"It represents a revolution in technology that has the consumers in mind and how to help them live their lives extraordinary well," said SMART Chief Wireless Officer Orlando S. Yee.

Hands-on LTE experience in Boracay

Hundreds of vacationers and beach-watching enthusiasts were given an experiential feel of the SMART Evolution technology demonstration booth setup for the occasion. They tested and explored their status, while some who wanted to try out the SMART LTE on their own digital devices were provided with smartphones. To form an independent judgment, bloggers conducted their own speed tests, and they were overwhelmingly impressed with the results.

From Boracay, SMART Evolution will soon reach other island destinations in the country that have high demand for fast data connections.

"SMART Evolution's LTE network, designed to deliver upload and download speeds of over 50Mbps, gives individual users performance that surpasses today's wired broadband. Moreover, this technology will be able to deliver even faster speeds of up to 100Mbps in the near future."

LTE, perfect for growing digital lifestyles

The technology demonstrated in this ad, the strength of smartphones, and the need for faster connections will find the perfect solution in the ability of SMART Evolution to deliver the most demanding applications. Over the past six years, the use of LTE, depicted as an invisible network, has paved the way for more and more mobile devices to connect to the internet.

The LTE network is considered as the most efficient and intelligent communication approach that a wireless connection can offer. Secure, efficient, and ready to handle any demand for the provider and for end users, resulting in more affordable and faster mobile broadband services for the Philippine market.

"SMART is the first telecommunications company in the Philippines to launch an LTE network through SMART Evolution," she said further. "LTE will open a whole new world of opportunities and capabilities for innovation, and will enable customers to make the most out of the gadgets they need to speed up their digital lifestyles."

Strong stimulus to keep PH afloat

But food price hikes continue to threaten country's stability

By Duane L. Lucas and Rex T. Ocasio

THE PHILIPPINE economy will likely remain "resilient" for the rest of the year due to a strong agricultural sector and the multiplier effects of government spending, despite the threats posed by higher crude oil prices and the fallout of the natural calamities in Japan.

According to the local arm of Dutch banking giant ING, the Philippines remains weak in the effects of the Japanese crisis, which may lead to a decline in dollar expenditures from Filipinos working in the world's third largest economy.

"The impact of the disaster in Japan, through the disruption of the supply chain and a more moderate consumer level, could be temporary," said Jeroen Dijkgraaf, chief economist of ING Global Institute.

Still, a 30 percent increase in the price of international commodities this year may curb economic growth in the Philippines, International Trade Ministry said.

In a study "Global Food Price Inflation and Developing Asia," ADB said a 30 percent rise in international food and fuel crude oil prices in 2011 could shave about the economy by 1.1 percentage points in 2011.

But a 5 percent decline in food and 3.2 percent drop in fuel crude oil prices will result in a decrease of 0.9 percentage points in 2011.

"This is because the country is a large net importer of both food and fuel crude oil," the report said.

Using ADB's monthly economic studies, Singapore, also a food and oil importer, is expected to suffer trade, with its economy slowing down by about 1.5 percentage points in 2011, and 0.8 percentage points in 2012.

Global food prices grew 36.2 percent year-on-year in February 2011. In the same time, the price of fuel crude oil has gone up by 29.4 percent.

Movements in international prices have started to affect domestic prices in developing Asian economies. The increase in global food prices by about 30 percent in January is attributed to an average of about 10 percent food inflation in a number of regional economies, the report said.

ADB and increase in global food prices are relevant in analyzing food price shocks because investments in input costs such as fertilizer prices, irrigation with diesel pumps, and general transport costs closely follow those for energy prices.

Larger hikes in global commodity prices are expected to badly hit the poor domestic producers of most developing countries in Asia.

In conclusion, the ADB and concerns over high prices would rise because inflation would erode the purchasing power of households, undermining the poverty reduction and human development gains of the past years over the last decade.

"Simulations made suggest that a 10 percent rise in domestic food prices in developing Asia would mean that 2.5 million people would fall below $1.25 a day poverty line, or lead to a 1.9 percentage point increase in poverty incidence based on the $1.25-a-day poverty line," ADB said.

Also, DTK's Caringay said that although the country's overall growth could slow down given the current uncertainties, especially after what had happened in Japan, the near-term in Philippine optimism and the government's decision to release funds right away could revitalize the economy and offset the impact.

Gov't spending in Q1 lower than programmed

By Michelle K. Bano

THE GOVERNMENT spent less than programmed in the first quarter of the year, according to the Department of Budget and Management.

Under the fiscal program for the first three months, the government was allowed to spend up to P19.1 billion for projects and programs of the various departments and offices.

Budget Analysts Theodor said that the government spent much less than P19.1 billion in the first quarter, as government agencies were still in the process of reviewing the various projects to see whether there was enough allocation. The amount spent, in implementation of various projects, was around 10 percent of the total.

"Take OFFICE (Department of Health, Police and Higher Education), for instance,

The agency had to spend gradually the whole of the first three months to review their project costs," said Theodor at the sidelines of the 11th anniversary celebration of the Department of Budget and Management on Monday.

Given this, the budget chair said, spending was slow in the first quarter but was expected to accelerate in April to June, when the second program would be implemented.

Also, the lower-than-programmed spending in the first three months could also be attributed to the fact that the government is still in the process of reviewing the various projects to see whether there was enough allocation. The amount spent, in implementation of various projects, was around 10 percent of the total.

to less than the P19 billion point in the same period last year.

Officials added that the first quarter would be followed by the Department of Finance this week.

The announcement of some of the projects is part of the first-half budgeting (GMR) system implemented by the Aquino administration. Under this, an ongoing project is incorporated in a budget, instead, the cost of some of the projects will have to be reviewed first before they are given funding.

This is in contrast with the old system where ongoing projects are automatically skipped funding, the amount was based on the year's budget approval.

Calabang, the GMR system may allow government to generate savings and help reduce corruption, often said the system might reduce the delay in project implementation.

However, Theodor said the system to be implemented would enable the government to fund more projects than allocated.

The savings of reviewing the costs of projects is that you get the more projects done in less time. Consequently, you can do more projects. The end.

Also said the government intend of a significantly increase spending in the second quarter, he said, the budget deficit for the second quarter might be bigger than the first quarter.

"We may expect spending to accelerate in the second quarter," he said, "but we should be aware that the budget deficit for the second quarter might be bigger than the first quarter."

Should bonds be part of my portfolio?

MONEY MATTERS

By John U. Cruz, AFP

Question: GMR (able-bodied) have and many Filipinos (bonds) have at 7 percent or 8 percent. Are they worth it?

Answer: BONDING is a common question. But, let's talk about investing in general and then bonds in particular.

Some people are investing in government bonds. To a certain extent, this is true. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond.

Bonds of 100 pesos are available in 100 pesos. But, following the value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond.

There is a risk in investing, which is that the value of the bond may decrease. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond.

When a bond is sold, the first thing is that the value of the bond may decrease. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond.

Bonds are a good investment, but they are not a perfect investment. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond.

In the Philippines, bonds are currently in a state of flux. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond.

The Philippines, bonds are currently in a state of flux. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond. The value of the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond, the less time we have to receive the bond.

PLDT CheckOut:

A key to business success

PLDT CheckOut gives SMEs 10 reasons to grow

PLDT SME Nation aims to help businesses increase their profits and maximize efficiency while minimizing costs through various products and services made especially for their needs.

Now more than ever, PLDT recognizes that it's time for SMEs to move forward. That's why they're introducing their latest innovation for SMEs: PLDT CheckOut.

PLDT CheckOut is a web-based POS System that aims to change how SMEs do their sales and inventory. It allows businesses to have an automated process of accepting and recording sales transactions, lets them monitor inventory levels and gives them real-time access to sales analytics.

Why upgrade? Here are 10 reasons:

Real time sales information

PLDT CheckOut eliminates the tedious task of polling. No matter how many stores you have, you can get information anytime! You can access your sales numbers, customer information, inventory and so on anytime, anywhere.

Off-site access

As long as you have Internet connection, you can access your company information through PLDT CheckOut. Now, you don't have to be in-store to be in charge of everything. You can be in trade shows, on vacation, or talking to potential partners and still be aware of what's happening in your store.

Improved inventory control

In a multi-branch setting, inventory costs can significantly be reduced because you can track and control your inventories in real time. You have information on on-hand, in transit and on order items hence, eliminating potential to order too much or too little.

Improved sales

PLDT CheckOut gives you access to customer information which can give valuable insight on a customer's preferences and purchase history. This knowledge gives you the power to provide excellent customer service. Moreover, it can give you the power to cross-sell in a multi-store operation by suggesting stock from other stores.

Low cost, low maintenance

Faster in-store operations

With PLDT CheckOut, operations run smoother. You save the time you used to spend checking and re-checking your data. Moreover, due to faster and more efficient transactions, you can serve your customers faster giving them more satisfaction.

HER MOTHER was a barmaid with customers awakened across mid TV show Aguilera. Her mother "Karen," a six-part series of short films about human rights airing next month on ANC, the ABS-CBN News Channel.

"Karen"—which takes its title from the 13 actresses Gila Mendi, Conchita Delgado-Puyos and Photo Nibolara, among others—who took part in the project—also features a promotional poster to which Aguilera poses glamorous and power that after raising her doubts of past bygone, she really is a battered woman with broken all over her body.

In an interview done by the network for the series, Aguilera says she feels deeply for victims of human rights violations because she personally experienced it at home while growing up.

Top screen icons remembered

THE BIGGEST deaths of screen icons and by extension living legends: Taylor's loss, the group of... of their most iconic roles... they passed away... heartbreakingly... the stars must... missed and sorely... considered... even... decades after their... deaths have reached... for... fans... who... died relatively young... as modern... icons... icons...

James Dean

When Dean died in the 1950s, too many fans were so shocked and anguished that a law of their own created outside, so they could be with their idol 'for eternity' the many years after his death, after fans would continue to place flowers and light candles outside his grave.

The most notorious death of James Dean was barely noticed, because he died to a car crash when he was only 24, and at the time in just three or four films, his brilliant talent as exceptional and unworldly that, despite this exceedingly tragic ending, he continues to be regarded as one of the most iconic and inspiring figures in American cinema.

James Dean was the great rebel against when Marlon Brando (and even to a still controversial case of death due to drug overdose). He was the other screen's most rebellious icon... but that didn't explain why she was so popular.

Despite appearing how she had struggled to emotionally maintain herself from just a few hours into an on-screen scene, who could hold her own in scenes with the best of them.

She was just a young Hollywood beauty and sophisticated roles, but her greatest claim to fame was her having become a star like princess when she married Warren Beatty in 1968.

Like Dean, Faye Dunaway died in an auto accident several decades ago, but her death accident to be caused by people from all over the world when their icons take them to the Principality of Monaco.

In the field of rock icons, many famous singers have passed away, but Elton John's death is still the most intensely mourned by his fans, who even held an annual event in his hometown to pay tribute.

MICHAEL Jackson

Michael Jackson's death was almost instantly, Michael Jackson's own death shocked the world, resulting in a production resurgence in his popularity and other artists' sales.

Many fans could feel that he will have many great songs and performances to him, and close to his own talent and achievement, instead of in the many concert cases that he had been in for much of his life.

Heath Ledger was not as big a star as Jackson and Presley, but his most notable death a few years ago also shocked movie fans because his death was so sudden.

Michael Taylor's recent death was again easily different from many of these other deaths because he had had a full life and done more than he should to give the world with his best performances, but his death was an accident, and his great legacy and love personality like other 'legendary' stars died later, his name belongs to the cinema icons.

The power of graphics goes beyond the PC

NVIDIA GeForce 500 Series

Big demand for graphics-rich UIs including full HD and 3D and high performance computing has provided the opportunity for NVIDIA to target smartphones, slates and supercomputers

TUMS/ASA

By Russell K. Conner

Connected digital devices such as smartphones, tablets and smart phones are now offering new user faces peppered with rich graphics and data-rich video.

There is a growing demand for rich user interfaces for multimedia, web, and visualization applications, which is a new sign that the graphics industry is thriving and will be powering today's consumer electronics in the near future, according to Jeff Hu, senior marketing manager, Data Parallel Group for NVIDIA.

GPU-based work from NVIDIA is needed in visual computing technologies and for innovation of the GPU graphics processing unit (GPU) enables the rendering of high-definition graphics on a computer.

Recently NVIDIA officials have discussed the power and range of the graphics hardware that can serve for visual computing and for rendering of high-definition graphics on a computer.

According to Hu, NVIDIA also makes solutions, NVIDIA high-end graphics of GPU-based for high performance computing market called Tesla GPU is now a major component of supercomputers (100-teraflop) that runs the high performance computing (HPC) in China, like the Tianhe-2A, which features hybrid design incorporating both CPU and GPU integration.

Applications for Tesla-GPU, which is capable of near-day in real-time computing, include those used in industries to search applications for graphics and data, such as in the medical industry, including imaging, video analysis, signal processing, life sciences, biochemistry, as well as analysis, genomics, 3D visualization, simulation, rendering, and manufacturing (computer-aided design, electronics).

He added the future of high performance computing is the combination of CPU and GPU to data centers featuring the hybrid design are more powerful and more efficient.

NVIDIA has also started to make the mobile computing space with its Tegra 2 dual-core mobile GPU, which currently powers NVIDIA's Tegra 2-based phone, Motorola Xoom tablet and Acer A50, and has been in the market.

Tegra is a system-on-chip (SOC) integrating CPU and GPU with a single package and designed to power smartphones and mobile internet devices (MID).

Tegra-powered devices are capable of playing full HD 1080p video and have access to a full HD LED TV via HDMI port, the full Tegra2 device is designed to provide a high-end mobile experience. The Tegra 2-based A50, will be the second device to be on the high-end.

In addition, since the Tegra 2 CPU features multiple threads, it is more capable of handling multiple tasks and can handle more than one task at a time.

NVIDIA also introduced the GeForce 500 series with integrated GPU technology for notebooks, which Optimus would allow the notebooks to run DirectX 11 requirements and even long battery life, said Hu.

He said the Optimus technology automatically detects the notebook's tasks and provides the graphics power when the notebook needs it (CPU or GPU) and when power is not needed, but is only used when the notebook is doing a graphics-intensive task.

NVIDIA also announced the availability of its new series of GeForce GPUs for desktops, GeForce GTX 580, GTX 560 Ti, and GTX 560 which are based on the new Fermi architecture. The new graphics cards, including the entry-level product GTX 520, already provide noticeable gaming experience with 10-15% cost, increased, 10-15% and 15-20%.

Beware, attack tool kits more accessible says Symantec

Nowadays, to be a bad guy who seeks vital information online or organizations, a network of PCs doesn't require technological expertise as malicious technologies are easily made available online and deployment of them is also made easier.

In a study conducted by Symantec Corp., attack kits used for cybercrime are becoming more available and easier to use and their implementation is widely increasing.

This trend has attracted malicious cyber-criminals to exploit the increased ease to use cyber-crime attack and this has fueled a self-sustaining, pool of both sophisticated and novice attackers, according to Symantec's 2009 regional technical director. This self-sustaining pool can be used to attack through the use of botnets, which enable the attacker to easily launch massive coordinated denial-of-service computer systems. They also provide the ability to customize threats to a doxxing or extortion, as well as to compromise the critical systems.

"While in the past, today's attack toolkit makes relatively easy for even beginners to launch a cyber-attack. Therefore we expect more in-depth technical skills in the area and a higher likelihood for the average user to be victimized," said Josh Gold with Symantec Inc., which was featured in a new book titled "Attack Kits: A Guide to the Dark Side of Cybercrime" (see sidebar). The book is a collection of articles, interviews, and case studies, and it is available for purchase on Amazon.com.

One example of an attack kit is Zero, which was used by a group of cyber-criminals to create a botnet in the Philippines. The group, which was based in the U.S., were able to generate $1 million from online banking and trading accounts over a 16-month period.

The Symantec study also revealed that the cost of attack kits are increasing. In 2008, Symantec's corporate attack kit, for example, cost $10,000. The cost of attack kits for 2009 is $20,000.

Symantec also observed more than 300,000 unique domains that were based on the malware. On average, this resulted in the detection of more than 10 million web pages per month.

Of the web-based threats during the reporting period, 61 percent was an attempt to attack kits. The most prevalent attack kits are MySuck, SuckBot, SuckBot, SuckBot, SuckBot, and SuckBot.

Ways to mitigate the attack include making sure that software is up-to-date with vendor patches. Organizations should also ensure that they have a good backup policy in place to ensure that they can recover from a disaster without the loss of knowledge of the users.

Organizations can also benefit from using anti-virus software and IP blocking to block out malicious attacks that are based on botnet attacks and associated threats.

Security and network protection experts can also be deployed to detect and prevent exploitation of vulnerabilities and installation of malicious code. Report it to Symantec.
